

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An Internet connection provider carries an electronic mail translating step of translating a part or all of the contents of an electronic mail sent from a user who is a subscriber of the Internet connection provider or an electronic mail addressed to the user. Further, a translation judging step of judging, on the basis of combination information of the mail address of the user and the mail address of a communication partner of an electronic mail which is predetermined to be translated by the user, and information on the electronic mail addresses of transmission source and destination of a user-sending electronic mail or a user-addressed electronic mail, whether the user-sending electronic mail or the user-addressed electronic mail corresponds to an electronic mail which is predetermined to be translated by the user is provided before the electronic mail translating step.

15